Sanitization refers to the general process of removing data from storage media, such that there is reasonable assurance that the data may not be easily retrieved and reconstructed. This guide will assist organizations and system owners in making practical sanitization decisions based on the level of confidentiality of their information. NIST is responsible for developing information security standards and guidelines, including to NIST. All NIST Computer Security Division publications, other than the ones noted above, are available at NIST SP Rev. 1 Guidelines for Media Sanitization. Media sanitization refers to a process that renders access to target data on the media infeasible for a given level of effort. This guide will assist organizations and system owners in making practical sanitization decisions based on the categorization of confidentiality of their information. The NIST Guidelines identify four types of media sanitization to employ with different data security categories on various types of storage media and devices. The sanitization types in order of effectiveness and severity are Disposal, Clearing, Purging, and Destroying. NIST Special Publication Guidelines for Media Sanitization is the US Governments data media destruction standard. This guideline is referenced in all federal data privacy laws as the only approved method of destroying personally sensitive data. NIST Computer Security Division Released Special Publication Revision 1, Guidelines for Media Sanitization This is the short announcement that was provided for this document: Media sanitization refers to a process that renders access to target data on the media .

Guidelines for Media Sanitization This document will assist organizations in implementing a media sanitization program with proper and applicable techniques and controls for sanitization and disposal decisions, considering the security categorization of the associated systems confidentiality. Special Publication (SP) , Guidelines for Media Sanitization. SP Revision 1 provides guidance to assist organizations and system owners in making practical sanitization decisions based on the categorization of confidentiality of their information. Media sanitization refers to a process that renders access to target data on the media infeasible for a given level of effort. Tracking/documenting actions include, for example, listing personnel who reviewed and approved sanitization and disposal actions, types of media sanitized, specific files stored on the media, sanitization methods used, date and time of the sanitization actions, personnel who performed the sanitization, verification actions taken, personnel who.
