The Naulahka, A Story of West and East, written by Rudyard Kipling in collaboration with Wolcott Balestier, was serialised in the Century Magazine from November to July However, after two instalments and Wolcotts sudden and untimely death from typhoid in Dresden on 5th December , Kipling was left with the task of revising and supervising the first English and American book editions . The Naulahka - A Story of East and West is more of a story of East and less of West. The book is well written, though calling the well-crafted plot gripping will be a slight overstatement/5. The Naulahka There was a strife 'twixt man and maid-- Oh, that was at the birth of time! But what befell 'twixt man and maid, Oh, that's beyond the grip of rhyme.
